THE GERMAN EMPEROR.

Berlis, June 31.—In to-day's sitting of the Federal Council Prince Bismarck notified the decease of the Emperor King Frederick and the accession of King William II. to the Prussian throne, and the consequent devolution of the Emperial dignity to his Majesty. The council agreed to the motion of the Saxon representative for the renewal of the anti-Socialist law.

PESTH, June 21.—A religious service in memory of the late Emperor Frederick was celebrated at the Evangelical Church to-day, and was attended by the Emperor, the Ministers, the presidents of the Hungarian Diet, the principal civil and military authorities, and the foreign consular body. The Emperor wore the uniform of a Prussian general. In the Lower House of the Hungarian Diet to-day, M. Tisza announced that the Emperor of Germany had been deeply moved by the vote of condolence adopted by the House, and had requested that his cordial thanks should be conveyed to the members.

Serious Loss of Life.

New York, June 21.—Advices received from Mexico to-day give distressing accounts of the floods in the State of Guanajuato. In the town of Silao the water continues to rise, and 300 houses have been destroyed, while twenty persons have lost their lives. A serious freshet has occurred in the vicinity of the town, and the road bed of the Mexican Railway has been carried away for a considerable distance. The River Toliman has overflowed its banks near Queretard and caused some loss of life. The crops in the surrounding country have been damaged, and the trains are unable to proceed beyond Lagos. Serious fears are entertained at Leon, where the river is still riging.

will the managers of the Unionist party never recognise the suicidal policy of starting carpet-bag candidates against local Gladatonites? This was, undoubtedly, the cause of the disastrous Unionist defeat at Ayr. Mr. Evelyn Ashley has many merits, ne doubt, but they are not of a nature to commend him to a Scotch constituency. It is my strong impression that a Conservative candidate would have won. But the seat being a Liberal Unionist one, etiquette prescribed that a candidate belonging to that party should be started, and the choice unhappily fell upon Mr. Ashley, as bad a selection as could well have been made. If this sort of work goes on much longer, the Ministerial majority will be bound to dwindle away until at reaches the vanishing point.

Why should professional spouters in the parks be allowed to send round the hat for donations, when professional mendicants are not permitted to do so? I cannot see any difference between them; they are equally public nuisances, and the lies of the one lot are not a bit more palatable than the lies of the other. In both cases, too, blackmailing sometimes comes into play; even as the whining beggar often changes his snivel into threats when refused, so does the spouter blackguard those who decline to administer to his wants.

Just two years have passed since the present Unionist Ministry came into office, under circumstances of unexampled difficulty. Brilliant, indeed, is the record of their performances. Through the whole period the empire has been at peace, trade has continuously improved, taxation and expenditure have diminished, the conversion of Consols is an accomplished fact, and England has been and still remains on friendly terms with the whole world. In addition, Ireland has quieted down in a truly remarkable manner, while Great Birtiain has at last received some share of beneficial legislation. Great achievements, truly, and were not promise of more value than performance in the eyes of so many electors, the Government would win every bye-election.

Sir Bartle Fiere was right; England ought to have annexed Zululand when she had the opportunity. The distracted country is going from bad to worse owing to the absence of settled government, and judging from present indications there seems strong likelihood of our having another Zulu war on our hands before long. Interneoine warfare seems to have become chronic, while the Boer filibusters in the north never loss a chance of playing for their own hand. Never was there a greater bungle than Mr. Gladstone's "pacification plan." But it tided over difficulties for the moment, and that was all he cared about, even as he now seek to bestow Home Rule on Ireland to gatch the Irish wote. tunity. The attendance at the Birmingham Park was cry good, considering what a difficulty there always has been in getting people there. Very good, considering what a difficulty there always has been in getting people there. Very little need be said about the sport, which was mainly made of little races. After Mazaroni had been given the June Maiden Plate by Cook, who could not ride Aito, and Mr. Abington had landed the Oscott Plate on Fairy Ring, Dulcie took the Four Oaks Park Plate from half a dozen opponents. Mr. Peck's filly did not act well descending the hill, but won cleverly at last.

Lillywhite and Co.'s team of football players improved greatly on the form they showed at Melbourne against the Carlton Club, who beat them very easily indeed at the Colonial game.

On Wednesday they met Bendigo, and beat them by five goals and sixteen behinds to one goal and fourteen behinds. The cablegram dates from Sandhurst, and speaks of the match as against Bendigo. As regards ordinary affairs, Sandhurst is the city which superseded Bendigo the mining is settlement, and also includes several other townships. If our men beat the united strength of Sandhurst, late Bendigo, this was a good performance, but is not so smart if the Bendigo club only were played.

Seldom, indeed, if ever, have so many men engaged at Henley, taken up residence there so early before the regatta. Most of the college crews, and Leander, are there practising on Regatta Reach already, and in this particular have taken a start of the metropolitan clubs.

A surprising amount of our fauna lies dormant during the winter. Hedgehogs, dormice, squirrels—all the reptilia and amphibia—not to mention others, use this means of spending the cold months of the year. The hedgehogs roll themselves up in leaves, and the dormice make little round nests. The squirrels only partially hybernate, sometimes sleeping for some days together and then coming out. Snakes go to sleep in the company of many others of their kind occasionally a great many being found all twisted together. Newts hide themselves under stones and tufts of grass.

Mr. Coles relates that last Sunday he saw a sparrow pick up a large blackbeetle, and fity with it to the top of a neighbouring house. My correspondent mentions this as an example of the bird's strength, and no doubt it does seem marvellous that so small a bird could fit up with so large an insect, butthen a blackbeetle does not weigh much, and I am very much mistaken if the sparrow could not carry a much heavier article.

while "Wood Barrow Farm" was going on, Mr. Arthur Roberts was engaged in directing his annual matinée, for which he had compiled a mammoth programme. I heard the Yankee humourist, Mr. M. P. Wilder, tell some diverting stories in a diverting way; and Mr. Alec Marsh and Mr. Leo Stormont and Miss Vesta Tilley sang while I was there. But what I most enjoyed was what I heard of the first act of "Billee Taylor," with Miss Florence St. John as the most bewitching of Phobes, Miss Madeleine Shirley as Arabella, and Mr. Charles Collette as Sir Mincing Lane—all of them, I believe, "for the first time."

I hear it is definitely settled that "Macbeth" shall be the next production at the Lyceum. I also hear that Miss Marion Terry is to join the company. There is some probability that, after "Macbeth," Mr. Ivring will produce Mr. Wills's "Don Quixote" or "King Arthur."

I remember one case, though, of what seemed very great strength in an animal. A white rat of mine, not a very large one, which was very fond of pilfering any articles that took his fancy, on one occasion took a heavy tricycle spanner, weighing much more than the animal itself, and after dragging it a short distance pulled it up the perpendicular side of his care, about eight inches high, and deposited it in his bed-room. An epidemic of suicide is raging fiercely at Dundee. Yet the constituency is represented by Mr. Bottomley Firth.

The papers entitled "Chronicles of the 'Crooked' Club." which will begin in our columns on the 8th July, do not, I understand, include in their purview those very "crooked clube " at the Westend where he who sits down to baccarat or " nap" usually rises a sadder and—so far as his purse goes—a considerably lighter man. The keepers of these "hells" had better keep their weather eyes open, or they may chance to be pounced upon by the police. Not too soon, either; if half what I hear be true, a regular " skinning of the lambs" goes on nightly at some of the iniquitous dens.

Oh, Bessie, my darling, I am ever in pain.

With your image before me, both sleeping and waking:

For the want of your love, which I sought for in with anguish too bitter my heart is now aching.

Why was it ordained that we ever should meet. So cruel, so cold, with your heart like a stone; Your treatment is such that my ruin's complete, And now I must suffer in this world alone.

Why could I not see what I thought was a treasure.

Was merely a statue without warmth or life?

What a fool I must be to look forward with plear to the hour in which I could call you my wife.

But the time may yet come when your eyes will be open,

Which has sped like an arrow and riven my heart.

But I freely forgive, though I cannot caress you, And will try to forget—a hard task it will be—That God in His love will look down and bless you, Is the bitterest wish I can send unto these.

Window Gardening.

Encourage the plants growing along the front of the outside window boxes to fall over and hide the box. A little attention frequently given will add much to the appearance of the boxes. Stir the soil between the plants with a sharp-pointed stick, and when they begin to blossom they may have a little stimulant, either in the shape of liquid manure or a little artificial may be sprinkled over the soil and watered in. Young growing stock in the window should be shifted into larger pota before becoming pot-bound. Keep down inaects with the sponge and soap and water. NOTICE.

On the 8th JULY we shall begin the publica tion of a New Series of Social Sketches by in them; humour and pathos run through Nights," how close the portraiture is to nature. Since the two series we have just named appeared in our columns, we have very numerous expressions of approval, showing that Mr. Greenwood' writing suits the taste of our readers. make no doubt that the forthcoming series will prove equally successful with its pre decessors in that respect. From standpoint of originality, indeed, the Chronicles of the 'Crooked' Club" promise to surpass all of Mr. Greenwood's previous efforts as a social portrait painter.

to repeat for their benefit. That advice is to remember that the issue to be decided on the 29th of June is not a personal issue, but a political. Policy not persons must decide the political. Policy not persons must decide the sound condition.

HORSE-FLESH AS FOOD.

At Salford, on Friday, James Lomax, butcher, was fined £10 and costs, or a month's hard labour, for exposing nine pieces of horse-flesh for sale. In his cellar was a forequarter of the same in an unsound condition. day at Thanet. Recent by-elections, as they are into the scale at a Parliamentary election only confuse the main issue which ought to be put clearly before the electors—and kept there. What is that main issue? Simply this: Is the present Government worthy of the country's confidence or not? "If I help to turn out Lord SALISBURY and his colleagues shall I get better men and better measures in their stead?" That is the question which every Thanet elector should ask himself at this crisis. And if every Thanet elector will honestly do that we have no fear of the result. "By their fruits," it has been well said, "ye shall know them." It is precisely by their fruits" that the members of the present Government desire to be known and to be judged. For what other test, after all. should practical men require of the merits of an Administration? Mr. SMITH may be a less eloquent man than Mr. GLAD-STONE; but eloquence and other showy qualities of debate do not always help the despatch of public business. "By their fruits ye shall know them." If a Government is able to show that it has been true to the pledges given to the country at the general election which brought it into office; if Ministers can point to work done and to a period of peace abroad and progress at home, they need not fear to appeal to the verdict of any constituency.

How far are Lord Salisbury and his colleagues in that position? How far does the present Government deserve the confidence of the country? That question was excellently answered on Wednesday by Mr. ASHMEAD-BARTLETT in a speech he made at Margate in support of the candidature of Mr. LOWTHER. The Conservative Government," said Mr. ASHMEAD-BARTLETT, " has achieved more in two years, in the way of beneficent legislation and soundfinance, and to increase the National and Imperial Defences of England, than the Gladstonian party accomplished in six years." That is so. To begin with,

Mr. BALFOUR's unflinching administration of the law in Ireland, has broken the back of the disloyal conspiracy which had reached such gigantic proportions in that country. More, it is true, remains to be done, but not more than every sensible man expected. After two years of Unionist Government the Unionists and the union are stronger and more confident than ever. Turn to domestic legislation. The Mines Act, the Allotment Act, the Merchandise Marks Act, the act for improving the dwellings of the working classes, the act for the protection of young women and girls, all these are measures which the country owes to the benevolent energy of the present Govern-ment, an energy which, it will be remembered, was at one time exerted in the face of persistent was at one time exerted in the face of persistent obstruction on the part of the Opposition in Parliament. Thanks to Mr. Goscher's financial ability the budget has been largely reduced, the income-tax has been lowered by 2d., the country has been saved two millions and a half annually by the Conversion Bill, and the Imperial Exchequer has contributed three millions to relieve local taxation. Meanwhile our couling stations are being fortified our tion of a New Series of Social Sketches by Mr. JAMES GREENWOOD (the Amateur Casual), entitled "CHRONICLES OF THE "CROOKED" CLUB." These papers will portray a number of eccentric characters and out-of-the-way incidents of the clouds which have obscured the political peculiar to the shady side of human life. Tragedy and comedy are alike represented in them; humour and pathos run through it have a hore and abroad therefore, the in them; humour and pathos run through high. At home and abroad, therefore, the each story; while it needs scarcely be said, Government can confidently offer to the seeing that they are by the author of electors of Thanet, a record of work done and "Tatterdom Tales" and "Our Saturday of steady progress, which, if facts are to go for Nights," how close the portraiture is to LOWTHER an even larger majority than that given to Colonel KING-HARMAN.

That pest of the metropolis the "Pirate That pest of the metropolis the "Firste Omnibus" has just received what we hope will prove a check to its nefarious operations from the magistrate at Westminster Police Court. A foreign gentleman prosecuted a conductor for charging him a shilling for a journey from Piccadilly to Sloane-street. It appeared that the omnibus had a movable board with a different list of fares on each side. The police seemed to think that the requirements of the law were complied with by the exhibition of the movable board with the variable charges. Mr. D'Eyncourt, however, very properly held that the Act 6 and 7 Vict., requires the fares to be painted on the body of the omnibus and not on a movable board. We trus that this common sense decision will be trust that this common sense decision will be found to deter the pirate rascals from entrap-THE MIDDLE ORDER OF MANEIND ARE COUNTY COUNTS. THE FIGHT AT THANET.

It would be almost impossible to exaggerate the importance of the forthcoming election of a new member for Thanet in place of Colonel Kino-Harman. On that occasion a Conservative seat, situated in that staunch stronghold of Unionism, the county of Kent, will be assailed by the Separatists flushed with victory at Southampton followed by victory at Ayr. It will be necessary, therefore, for the Unionist electors in Kent to teach their presumptuous opponents a lesson. That they will do so we have no doubt provided only they pay strict attention to a piece of advice which has been already given them and which we venture now to repeat for their benefit. That advice is to remember that the issue of the first manner of the munications relating to business matters shall be addressed to the MANAGER and not to the EDITOR. Loss of time and inconvenience may thereby be avoided.

At the Dalston Police Court on Friday, Annie Tomkins, 32, described as a governess, was committed for trial on a charge of obtaining a quantity of wearing apparel, value fifteen guiness, from Mr. Read, draper. Mare-street, Hackney, by means of false pretences.

Mr. Marthews, in reply to Mr. Cobb, said there had been a race at the sports of the Rugby Habitation of the Primrose League. It was not between a lamb, a dog, and a hen, but a three-year-old Welsa sheep-(laughter)—and a small terrier, which was much frightened by the sheep, and kept carefully out of the way. (Great laughter.) The hen had settled herself on the grass and refused to move, and was at once taken away. (Laughter.) The police stated that there was no cruelty, and that no protests had been made on that ground. Under these circumstances, he did not see anything to justify any further interference on his part. The Wine Duty.

On the motion for the third reading of the Customs (Wine Duty) Bill, Mr. CRILDERS expressed regret that for so small an amount the Government should have disturbed the wine duty, and still more that they should have introduced an advalorem duty which the voice of Parliament unanimously got rid of.—The bill was then read a third time.

A PRIMROSE DEMONSTRATION AT A PRIMROSE DEMONSTRATION AT HATFIELD.

At a Primrose League demonstration at Hatfield last week Lord Robert Cecii alluded to the death of the late German Emperor Frederick, and said history showed no equal instance of such herois fortitude. Lord Watter Lennor also referred to the subject, saying there was no stronger bulwark to the peace of Enrope than the late Emperor, and the greatest consolation was the fact of Lord Salisbury being at the head of foreign affairs. As to Homs Bule, Lord Lennox said it would lead to the destruction of England's supremay amongst nations. THE STATE OF THE PEOPLE OF THE PEOPL be delivered at the effice not later than 4 p.m. en Thursdays. I There were very few men among the crowned heads of Europe who had such a profound respect and admiration for our Volunteers as the late German Emperor. He watched with the greatest interest the birth and growth of the force, and although like the true soldier he was, he hated the surroundings of war, he was an ardent admirer of our military system. Whenever he was in England he spent many hours in watching Volunteers mancaurring, and he was always disappointed when attending our Aldershot field days on finding the auxiliaries did not take part in the day's programme. No time was spent more pleasantly with him than in witnessing a sham fight. Well do I remember how a few years ago, after his attending a ball at Marlborough House, he, with the Prince of Wales, took train at Vauxhall at helf past four in the morning, pulled up at the North Camp Station about six, rode away to the Fox Hills, witnessed a field-day under the direction of that grand old soldier Hope-Grant, and returned to town again in time for breakfast.

Perhaps there was no man on the continent

Perhaps there was no man on the continent who had such a strong opinion in favour of our Volunteers as the Emperor Frederick II. He was me who gauged the secret of their success, and me that at the bottom of it all there laid of love of country and a patriotic feeling which formed the strongest guarantee statesman or philosopher could devise to render our shore safe from the stack of an invader. I venture to think that as a body we have many reasons to regret the demise of one who towards us was an admirer and a friend.

It is just as I predicted last meak the Dialectics.

It is just as I predicted last week. The Richmond Park scheme won't go down with the public. Ilmost every newspaper is opposed to it, and the local authorities are dead against it. The council of the National Rifle Association had better cast about in some other direction, and at one shandon all idea of promoting a bill in Parliament for the establishment of a range in Richmond Park. If they don't they will agend about and ment for the establishment of a range in actual Park. If they don't they will spend about much money in promoting a scheme, which never be carried, as would fix up half a d Wimbledon butts and targets on land will consent to place themselves within the scopensor of the property of the consent to place themselves within the scope of military law.

There is some talk of raising an engineer corps at Eastbourne, and should the event come off, I wish it every success; but Eastbourne is not exactly the sort of place for an enemy to attempt to land at, and there are many other towns in the provinces which have a prior claim on the consideration of the War Office authorities. Take, for instance, Manchestor, where a corps of 1,000 men could be enrolled in a week, every one of whose members would have some knowledge of engineering. I wonder how it is that the War Office have persistently refused to sanction the formation of such a corps in Cottonopolis. It would be very difficult to go anywhere and find better material than is to be obtained in Manchester.

better material than is to be obtained in Manchester.

I am rejoiced to find that a contemporary speaks out very plainly on the subject of veratious drills. Last Saturday the 1st Volunteer Battalion of the Cheshire Reciment, in camp at Hooton, was kept at drill for a long time although rain was descending in torrents. Of ourse, this sort of thing is done under the misapprehension that it looks military. This is all nonsense, for any one who knows anything at all about troops of the Line must be aware the greatest care is taken by commanding officers not to parade their men in wet weather. Should they muster before the rain comes on they are dismissed at once when Jupiter Pluvius opens the sluice gates, and the officer in command of the ibattalion who did not at once under such circumstances order his men to quarters would get the wigging he deserved. The long and short of it is that Volunteer officers too frequently allow zeal to take the place of discretion.

The very general complaint which has been too frequently allow zeal to take the place or discretion.

The very general complaint which has been heard in this country lately with regard to our unpreparedness for war, is just now being re-echoed by our friends in Adelaide. The Militia consists of only 850 men, and those are in the port only, and of 1,300 Volunteers, which apparently exist only on paper. Their drills have recently been reduced in number, and their opportunities of improving themselves in musketry practice has been minimised, the supply of ammunition is rigidly circumscribed, and their field guns out of date, and comparatively ineffective. One looked for a botter state of things than this after the colonial conference. Evidently our friends in Adelaide require shaking up.

The South Australian commenting on this state of things says, the ladies and gentlemen of the local archery club would be about as efficient as the Volunteers. This is certainly not complimentary to the Australian boys, but I have little doubt but that the statement is somewhat exaggerated. The worst feature in the twhole affair is that I find our Australian colonies do not seem inclined to work together, for Queen-land objects to the scheme of colonial defence. Perhaps if we lived under the blessings of Home Rule in England there might be dissensions among certain counties, but as it is we have much to be thankful for in the fact that every man who is enrolled as a Volunteer goes in for the defence of the United Kingdom, and does not care a button for sectional influences.

It is pleasing to announce that such a distinguished medico as Dr. Andrew Maclure has accepted the presidency of the Volunteer Ambulance School of Instruction. There are few better fitted for the post than Dr. Maclure. The lectures delivered during the season have given very general satisfaction to the members who only wish they had not been brought to a conclusion so soon. I understand the annual inspection of the corps will take place on the 28th of this month.

A report has been sent abroad this week to the first that the local authorities have instructions let to find out how many men there are in their district who have passed through the ranks of the and old district who have passed through the ranks of the Volunteers, and who would be willing to join the reserve. Well, it is true things are done after a strange fashion nowadays. To form a reserve all that is necessary is, in the first instance, for the Government to publish the conditions of service, and then to appoint an officer, probably one of the staff of a depot centre to enrol the men. What the local authorities have to do with the matter I am at a loss to know. Besides this I object on principle to members of local boards, vestries, boards of guardians, and other nobodies, dabbling with military affairs.

but few corps which could meet which would be made upon their fur

Of course we have not heard during the week anything further with regard to the brigading or mobilisation of the Volunteers. All that has been done in this direction has taken place within the precincts of the War Office, an institution which rejoices in hiding its light under a bushel. I expect towards the leclose of the present session of Parliament to hear the scheme has been laid on the table of the House, that it will be packed up in a glass case during the recess, and not brought before ithe public again until another war scare is on. If it can only be carefully preserved in lavender, and brought out uninjured when the exigencies of the nation require it, it will, nevertheless, show that a step has been taken in the right direction.

Scriously, there is no time to be lost over the matter. It is better to publish a plan to-day which has been already worked out, than to postpone it until a time when the country is in a furous of excitement over foreign complications. The sooner it is published the better, for there is nothing the Volunteers themselves so much dislike as uncertainty. If money enough is not forthcoming to put the plan into thorough working order this year, by any means let us know what the scheme is, so that we may be prepared next year to carry it into accustion.

the local authorities have to do with the matter I am at a loss to know. Besides this I object on principle to members of local boards, vestries, boards of guardians, and other nobodies, dabbling with military affairs.

It is far more important for us just now to ascertain what are the real intentions of the Bovernment with regard to the future of the Bovernment with regard to the future of the Bovernment with regard to the future of the Government with regard to the future of the government with regard to the future of the government will go as far as their finances will allow them, and unless a supplemental estimate is voted for some well defined plan, I fear that for the current year, at all events, we shall remain pretty much as we are.

By the way, I am told that the applications for fedd guns come in but slowly. When one comes to consider the extra expense and charges of horseing and manning even guns of position, I am not at all autonished at commanding officers recounting the cost before they make the application of the following elect particular to the first of the force of the first owners. The money not be ingressed consewhat premature to call upon them to undertake the management of the first of the first owners. The money not be increased a consensation of the cost of the reconstruction of the Survey of the control of the first owners are peculiarly fitted for Carrison work. They understand it, endit has always appeared somewhat premature to call upon them to undertake the management of kindle batteries. In fact, I am in a position to state that, with very few exceptions, commanding officers are of opinion they are better of without them. The cost of maintenance would prove far in excess of anything allowed by the Government than the cost of anything allowed by the Government of the cost of maintenance would prove far in excess of anything allowed by the Government than the cost of the foot to the covernment of the cost of the foot to the covern of the first owners of anything allowed by the Govern

THE PITCAIRN ISLANDERS. Colesworth, Captain Kitchen," says a correspondent, "we were fortunate in seeing Pitoairn Island, where are living most of the descendants of the mutineers of the Bounty. It was about dusk as we neared the island, and as we saw a light moving upon the waters, and soon after a beacon fire, the captain decided to heave to, and in a short time we observed a whale-boat named the Admiral Drew coming alongside, with a crew of twelve men, among whom were James Russel, M'Coy (the chief magistrate), and Elias and Ernest Christian, grandsons of Fletcher Christian, who was master's mate on the Bounty and leader of the mutiny. On their coming on board we saw usen who, in point of stature, would be a credit to the Guards' Regiment at home. The only defect I noticed was in their teeth, which in many cases were badly decayed, and in some gone allogether. Their complexions are slightly dark, and they speak excellent English. Of course, their clothes were not of the best, but those they were vere clean and tidy, and in the shape of head gear I noticed several brass-bound caps, obtained says a corresp speak excellent English. SHORT-LIVED ENJOYMENT.

A fortnight ago a youth of eighteen summers, named Ego, absonded from Château Salins, in a warrant at Worship-street Police Co charged with having obtained a sum of £5 false pretences and with intent to defraud J taken the Lace of his movements through the German embassy. A couple of detectives strolled as into the Eden Theatre the other evening (says as Paris correspondent), and in a few moments they perceived a young man answering the description of Ego seated at a table, on which were empty champagne bottles, surrounded by a group of gaudily attired women. When accossted by the individual they sought. He was taken to the police office, and there he soon made a clean breast of it; but of the £250 he had stolen only £16 remained, and Ego declared that if he had not been arrested he would have blown out his brains when he came to his last sou. Afterwards the police examined the room of the hotel at which Ego had put up, and besides three watches they found a goodly collection of brand new suits of clothes. Women, champagne, and dress had run through the money in less than a fortnight, and soon the hero of this adventure will be placed in the custody of the German police.

ALLEGED CRUEL SWINDLE.
At Manchester on Wednesday, Richard Wilkins, alias Morgan, was charged with attaining money by false pretences from poor hope. It was altered that he advertised for persons to manage dairies, and asserting that he was associated with Lord Vernon, obtained as much as 210 in some cases. It was further alleged that applicants were cruelly swindled, and that one poor woman was reduced to destitution by her loss.—The accused was remanded.

MURDERED ON HIS WIFE'S GRAVE.

A ghastly crime has just been committed at Mehouden, in the department of the Orne, France. An old man, 80 years of age, named Duhail, had gone to pray at the grave of his wife. As he was kneeling by the tomb he was suddenly assailed with terrible blows from a truncheon, which broke his shoulders and smashed in five of his ribs. It was his son Louis, with whom he was living, who had thus murderously assaulted him. "Alas! alas!" cried the poor old man in his anguish. "There is no alas! I must kill you!" replied the inhuman son. At last some of the villagers, who were passing by the churchyard interposed, and bore the father to his dwelling, where he expired a few hours afterwards. Louis Duhail has since been arrested.

I CURE FITSI

WHEN I say cure I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again. I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EFILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-ing study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure, then at once for a treatise and a Free Scottle of nothing for a trial and I will Address In Address In R. B. G.
